PURLANE by Bernice K. Harris:

This picture of only a generation ago will have all the charm of the past—simple, stable, full of traditional lore. In un-sentimental and authentic light, it tells in humorous yet moving way of a long Carolina hill family. So much has been written of "great plantations" and the "pitiful tenant farmers," that it is delightful to find an author writing of a more typical folk of the South: the small farmers, Americans, growing out of American land, living vigorous and vivid lives.

THE HUDSON by Carl Carmer:

The modern history of this river began when, in 1609, Henry Hudson, an English sea captain in the service of the Dutch East India Company, sailed its waters looking for the northwest passage to China. Noted in the log was "This is a very good land to fall with and a pleasant land to see," and so it has been. From evidently long and exhausting search of documents and history as well as first hand investigation, the author has packed to the brim this river biography. It is full of human interest and charmingly written. Carmer has condensed a vast amount of information, fact and legend, and made all of it come alive, from one end of the Hudson valley under Mt. Marcy in the Adirondacks to the great harbor where the mighty stream moves out to meet the commerce of the world.

NOT PEACE BUT A SWORD by Vincent Sheean:

"Personal History" published about five years ago was the first newspaper autobiography and, according to John Gunther, still the best. After a period during which he wrote fiction, the author has returned to politics and autobiography and carries on with his story of life and work from near 1938 to near 1939. Written in brilliant and forceful style, here is the record as he observed it first hand. During this fateful year he reports on England, Spain, Austria and Czechoslovakia. He saw the murder of the two democracies and one of the most moving and finest chapters is the elegy to Jim Lardner who was the last volunteer to enter the International Brigade in Spain and was killed just before that remarkable force was demobilized.

BLACK NABUSSUS by Rumer Godden:

Told in a quiet, smoothly flowing prose this story has the quality of a dream. Yet it also has humor and subtlety, as if the author had more than a twinkle of amusement at the situation of her own devising. For some it will hold a hint of the magic "Lost Horizon," for others a remembrance of "Bride of San Luis Rey," for all a serene mysterious mood which makes it hard to describe and harder to forget.

THE PRIORY by Dorothy Whipple:

Set in a mellow old home "The Priory," the story of an English family flows along its pleasant quiet existence until the widowed Major Marwood brings a young wife home to his two daughters and maiden aunt. The situation, natural and convincing, the characters real and engaging are all handled with insight, delicacy and fine feeling.

THE OPEN SKY by L. A. G. Strong:

As readers of "The Garden" and "The Sea Wall" will remember, Strong writes unforgettably of Ireland, of the mountains, the sea, the clouds and the rain. In "The Open Sky" he again uses the wild Atlantic Coast of Ireland for his setting. His hero, Doctor and author suffering from mental breakdown is sent to an out-of-the-way island far off the West Coast and finds the small group of people among whom he sojourns are a green lot. The recovery of the physician is made into an exciting and un-sentimental adventure.

F. O. B. DETROIT by Wessel Smittner:

The simple story about a couple of fellows who work in an automobile factory in Detroit, is anything but the simple tale it appears. Full of profound sympathy it is excitingly original and you will read with a catch in your throat: this novel of a man who wanted to be a man, not just a cog in the machine—Big Russ from the lumber woods who could drive anything (til the machine drove him); Benny who lived by the rules, and Rita, the taxi dancer, enact a picture, the story of science gone mad, of great forces beyond control and human details becoming less and less important, "not men but parts and bolts."

Let's Talk Change of Attitudes

By Arthur Dean, Sc. D.

I had to smile when a mother recently said to me, "You know, my daughter never reads the stuff you write in the paper. She is not a bit interested in kissing and doesn't care anything about boys. She says she is going to be a woman astronomer and that stars are to be her sweethearts."

I smiled because everything, in the mind of this mother, is apparently settled. Her girl is to be a spinster and a star-gazer. I will wager a good nickel that inside of a year this girl will be star-gazing, but not from the astronomical angle, and that a full moon and shadows on a lake will bring a little sign and a hint for some young man to say, "Tell me dear, what are you thinking of this minute?"

I know a boy who assured me that girls would never enter his

TWO STORIES

In this article, Dr. Dean relates the story of a young woman who was determined to become an astronomer and a spinster, and a young man who said that girls would never enter his life. . . Have you a problem? Let Dr. Dean advise you. His address is published at the end of today's article.

young life. He said, "Girls cost too much. I haven't any money to waste on them. I'm not going to buy any automobile to take them out. I want to go to college and I need all the dough I can gather together. Besides, what's the use? Girls are all alike!"

No Source of Worry

I had to smile when the boy said this. Of course he meant every word he said at the time he said it. He was living his thoughts then. But now it is all changed. He has a girl. And I haven't heard so much recently about college, sports, savings banks or school marks.

Am I worried? Not much! Is he any worse of better than he was? All I can say is that he has changed, just as I expected he would change, and I expect that by and by he will change again. For better or for worse. Would I worry if my astronomical-minded daughter, who was going to be a great scientist, suddenly lost an interest in the stars and gained a new one in a sweetheart? No. It is all in the day's work.

SENTENCED TO WORK

"One day's work around the city dump, pistol range or any place else the police chief may designate," City Judge Robert Lessing told J. E. Frandsen, 52, local gardener, when the latter faced him Monday on a charge of intoxication.

A single grapevine in Rosebud, Tex., covers the entire side of a building and is half a block long.

Youngs Attend Cousin's Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young of this city attended the funeral service Monday for Young's aged cousin, Miss Mary A. Doran, 78, who passed away last Saturday at a Los Angeles hospital. Miss Doran lived with her brother, Patrick L. Doran, who succumbed Nov. 23 at the age of 82. They had made their home in the hospital for several years on account of their advanced age and infirmities.

State Spends $633 On 35-Cent Evidence

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Detectives spent 35 cents to get evidence against a tavern keeper. They charged him with setting up a slot machine under Missouri's gambling statutes, which carry a minimum fine of $500.

Last November 139 veniremen were questioned. No jury could be obtained. During the February term 60 more were examined. All but six thought a $500 fine was too stiff. The state gave up, reduced the offense to a misdemeanor, allowed the defendant to plead guilty and pay a $100 fine.

Fees for prospective jurors totaled $633.

Attacks on four fronts now under way are speeding the construction of Arroyo Seco Parkway between Los Angeles and Pasadena.
